Resolutions – 1973 – 1984 – Racism, Multiculturalism, A Summary

It is interesting to note, in the light of the many changes in Canadian society over the past twenty years, that there are no resolutions dealing with racism, multiculturalism, or other inter-group issues aside from the one very vague resolution on language. Canadian Unitarians have certainly been aware of the UUA's concern on these matters. Harold Rosen, inspired by discussions at the UU Ministers of Canada, launched his program, "Rainbowmaking: Intercultural and Interfaith Outreach for Canadian Unitarians and Universalists," as a Canadian response to these concerns, and it has been used in a number of congregations.

This summary is based on resolutions adopted in 1973, 1974, 1976, 1978 (2), 1984.
