Humanism, what's that?	Bennett, Helen	Mrs. Green is teaching her daily science class one day when suddenly she receives terrible news: A popular student named Amanda has been struck by a car on her way to class and is now hospitalized with serious injuries. "Let's all pray for Amanda", says one earnest classmate. "Surely God will make her well if He hears our prayers." Mrs. Green is confronted with the dilemma that every public school teacher must be ready to deal with. While the church-state separation laws won't allow school prayer, Mrs. Green wants to do something to help her students cope with a life-threatening situation that has raised deep questions. Thus begins a conversation between teacher and students that forms the basis for this thoughtful work. Starting with the historic concept of separation of church and state, the curious youngsters' insistent questions lead to a consideration of philosophic issues: Why shouldn't they pray for Amanda in class? Why do some people believe in God while others don't? Is there life after death? What gives life meaning? In the course of what becomes a parent-approved after-school discussion, Mrs. Green presents a humanistic point of view, making the following points. Humanists look at life as a natural process, so they don't believe in the supernatural. They rely on science to explain the meaning of life, not on religion, though they support each person's freedom to choose to believe or not to believe. Rather than speculating about what comes after death, humanists prefer to focus on life on earth. Humanists generally espouse the values of universal education, freedom of thought and free expression, open-minded pursuit of the truth, tolerance of others' differences, mutual respect, and preservation of the environment. Complete with discussion questions, suggestions for activities, and a bibliography, this innovative approach to presenting humanism to young adults will be welcome by parents and teachers looking to expose their children or students to a secular philosophic perspective.	1	Book	RE	Toronto Library		$13 UUA Bookstore		Available

Bridging Program: Workshops and Guidelines, The	Bossen, Colin/Bouchard, Dawn Star	Renowned Native painter Allen Sapp's inspired and stunning artwork beautifully complements this sweet story of a boy preparing for his first powwow. The young boy's Nokum - his beloved grandmother - guides him through the events of the day and helps him to understand what the singing and dancing are about. Award-winning author David Bouchard adds rhythmic and informative text based on remembrances from Allen Sapp's own Cree childhood. A portion of the royalties for The Song Within My Heart will be donated to the Indian Federated College. One of the reasons the traditional church is still struggling to attract the postmodern generation (between 20 and 50 years of age) is because it also needs to be a contemporary congregation - in touch with culture and its current trends. In her latest book, Bowers identifies strategies to contemporize worship, fellowship, evangelism, social justice, rituals, and equipping the disciples for ministry. She discusses how each of these functions should produce a harmonic balance of spiritual energy. Borrowing concepts from global religions and the new age movement, Bowers puts a new twist on blending contemporary and traditional ways of being "church."	3	Book	RE	Toronto Library		$15 UUA Bookstore		Available

Seven Spiritual Laws for Parents, The	Chopra, Deepak	In The Seven Spiritual Laws for Parents: Guiding Your Children to Success and Fulfillment, healer and philosopher Deepak Chopra follows up on his runaway bestseller, The Seven Spiritual Laws of Success, by extending and reinterpreting his spiritual laws for parents. "From the day your baby is born, you are a teacher of spirit," Chopra writes. "Look upon spirituality as a skill in living, since that is what it is. I believe in imparting these skills as early as possible by whatever means a child can understand." To meet this end, Chopra translates his own "laws" so that even the youngest child can comprehend them. For instance, Chopra's First Law, "The source of all creation is pure consciousness... pure potentiality seeking expression from the unmanifest to the manifest," translates as "everything is possible." In his wise and deceptively simple program (focusing each day of the week on one of the seven laws), Chopra suggests ways for parents to teach children truly spiritual values by incorporating spiritual goals into family life. —Ericka Lutz	2	Book	RE	Toronto Library	$12.95	Amazon		Available - 2 copies

Adopting Small Group Ministry for Children's Religious Education	Forsyth-Vail, Gail	The ninety-four-page soft cover book is divided into two parts. Part One covers the implementation process during the first year and the modifications and improvements made during the second. It contains copies of memoranda, a letter to the congregation, a plan for educating small group facilitators, and other documents. It contains step-by-step information about what we did and what we learned, as well as some description of the effect the small group ministry model has had on our youth program. Part Two contains thirty-one sample worship and session plans for children's/junior youth small group ministry. Worship plans include information about sources for stories used. Small group activities and reflections are suggested for three different developmental levels. All sessions were written for the children and junior youth of the North Parish, and reflect the North Parish liturgical calendar, ongoing social justice projects, and events and issues of importance to the congregation. All would need to be adapted to reflect the calendar, projects, and events and issues of other congregations.	1	Book	RE	Toronto Library	$45	www.northparish.org		Available

Stories in Faith	Forsyth-Vail, Gail	Stories in Faith is an invitation to begin a unique spiritual journey, one in which stories help us to develop our faith and make meaning in our lives. This is a distinctly Unitarian Universalist collection of wisdom tales. Nineteen in all, the stories are culled from many cultures and traditions and presented using the seven Principles and six Sources as a framework for reflection and further exploration. Forsyth-Vail offers thoughtful advice for respectfully approaching materials from a culture other than one's own and encourages engagement with wisdom tales as an opportunity for lifelong inspiration and spiritual growth. Sexuality and Our Faith, Adults: A Companion to Our Whole Lives	Frediani, Judith	Invites adults to strengthen connections between their sexuality and spirituality, between their values and their behavior, between themselves and their religious community. Offers suggestions for group building and for creating a worshipful context for the program. This workbook is for individuals in faith communities who are responsible for setting policy or are directly involved with the screening and recruitment of volunteers at the national, provincial or local level concerning the recruitment of volunteers. The aim of the book is to provide each faith community with tools to create and maintain a safe environment, to protect those who are to be cared for and to prevent sexual, physical and emotional misconduct from occurring in places of ministry. Ruth Gendler has collected together some of the most accessible and beautiful poems ever written. Her collection is eclectic, international, and both spiritual and "right." This is the one collection of poetry that I give as a gift to people who read poetry only rarely. They always find their eyes opened by the freshness of Gendler's selections. The book follows the progression of a day from daybreak to night, which gives the book both cohesion and progression. Her art is sprinkled throughout the book, and it enhances the mood, without becoming intrusive. Really an excellent choice for yourself or as a gift. Screening in Faith	Gallagher, Brenda	K-Gr 5- Scripts for 10 plays to be put on by or for primary-grade children, along with a valuable introduction featuring notes on how to go about using drama with young children and techniques for altering the plays for different groups and production conditions. Each script features background information on the story, rehearsal time, running time, cast size and gender, as well as appendices for pronunciation of vocabulary, directions for construction of sets, props and costumes lists, and notes on the use of music and sound. The plays could well be used by secondary-school drama classes for performances for younger students as well as the younger children themselves. The selections were created from folktales from literary traditions (sources are cited in the bibliography). The Little Red Hen, Anansi, and Vasilia appear, as well as variants of stories such as "The Bremen Town Musicians." The playwright has worked to keep these as authentic as possible. Vi Hilbert, an Upper Saguil elder, has written a preface attesting to the authenticity of the Saguil tale and to the value of drama for keeping storytelling traditions alive. This is a valuable collection for libraries doing programming with children, for children's collections, and for libraries in secondary schools with active drama programs. Changing Light: The Eternal Cycle of Night and Day	Gendler, J.Ruth	Grade 4-6. A perennially difficult demand for libraries to fill is for high-quality children's plays. These excellent dramatic adaptations of 10 folktales from various countries and cultures will help fill that void. Each play is based on a story from the oral tradition that has retained, through many alterations across time, a core of truth about human nature and life. The volume includes a substantial introductory section that addresses many important concerns: adapting a play for various cast sizes; changing gender, setting, and length; vocal-projection exercises and theater games; plus many useful suggestions for production. Each play has detailed directions for creating sets, props, costumes, a realistic timetable for rehearsals and other production needs, and a pronunciation guide. Music is included, as is extensive information about some cultures that will extend and enrich the experience for children. The plays range from the simple "La Culebra" ("The Snake") to the ambitious "Vasilia Prekrenna" ("Vasilia the Beauty"). Each selection is well written and appealing, and may be performed in classrooms without a fee. A selection that will make many teachers (and their performance-hungry students) very happy. Use Back. 		A review from a customer states: Self esteem is absolutely essential in dealing with the challenges of life. Feeling good about yourself because of who you are rather than who your friends think you should be is what will help your child (and you) deal with peer pressure and making positive decisions. This book offers examples and suggestions that will help you develop a healthy and secure sense of yourself and your world. I bought it for my kids, but found it a great read for myself and a great resource for helping my children feel good about themselves and easing the pressure they often feel from their peers. It tells you not only how to take responsibility for your feelings, needs, and behaviors, it explains why that's important. A great find. She then offers hope for congregations that want to change. In-Between Church, The: Navigating Size Transitions in Congregations	Mann, Alice	Alban Institute Senior Consultant Alice Mann draws on her lengthy experience in helping congregations deal with the hurdles and anxieties of change from one size to another. Mann details the adjustments in attitude as well as practice that are necessary to support successful size change, whether growth or shrinkage.	1	Book	Leadership	Toronto Library	$13	UUA Bookstore		Available

Tribal Church: Ministering to the Not In Library Generation	Merritt, Carol Howard	Many churches are seeking ways to reach out to the younger generations. Unfortunately this often manifests as either a "come be just like us" attitude—suggesting an unwillingness to change in order to be inclusive of young people—or as a slick marketing campaign that targets young adults in much the same way secular advertising does. Both of these approaches often leave young adults feeling that their particular spiritual gifts and needs are unwanted by the church. "We only want you for your demographics" is the message given.	1	Book	Leadership			$17 Amazon		Signed Out	Mary Bennett	CUC West Office		mary@cuc.ca, 604-261-7204	NO

Courage to Teach: Exploring the Inner Landscape of a Teacher's Life, The	Palmer, Parker J.	This book builds on a simple premise: good teaching cannot be reduced to technique but is rooted in the identity and integrity of the teacher. Good teaching takes myriad forms but good teachers share one trait: they are authentically present in the classroom, in community with their students and their subject. They possess "a capacity for connectedness" and are able to weave a complex web of connections between themselves, their subjects, and their students, helping their students weave a world for themselves. The connections made by good teachers are held not in their methods but in their hearts — the place where intellect, emotion, spirit, and will converge in the human self — supported by the community that emerges among us when we choose to live authentic lives.	2	Book	RE	Toronto Library	$27.95	Amazon		Available

Emerging Church, The: A Model for Change & a Map for Renewal	Sanguin, Bruce	Guides both ministers and congregations seeking to shift the congregational culture towards a progressive form of Christianity. This is the classic book for parents whose child has died - and for all who want to help them. Many such parents feel that no one can help because no one can understand the complex ramifications of their tragedy: the exhaustion, the quarrels with mates, the sleeplessness, the panic, the inertia, the horror of laughter - all the seemingly endless aftermath of sorrow and despair. Yet, because she herself is a bereaved mother, Harriet Sanoff Schiff is able to give genuine comfort. If you have lost a child, you know that pain like yours cannot be erased, and Schiff does not attempt to do so. Instead, she offers guidelines and practical step-by-step suggestions to help you cope with every stage of grief, from facing the funeral to rebuilding your marriage. Her book will convince you that you, too, can find your way back to the land of the living.	1	Book	Leadership	Toronto Library		$24 www.christianbook.com		Signed Out	Mary Bennett	CUC West Office		mary@cuc.ca, 604-264-0008	NO

When God Speaks Through Change: Preaching in Times of Congregational Transition	Salterlee, Craig A	Anyone who has preached at a wedding and a funeral in the same week can attest to the power of the occasion to impact the preaching event. At times, a congregational transition looms so large in a sermon that it becomes the lens through which scripture is interpreted, the congregation is addressed, the preacher is heard, and God is experienced. Homistics professor and parish pastor Craig Salterlee reflects in this accessible, provocative volume on how to integrate such significant events in a congregation's life into the preaching ministry of the church. Rather than offering a blueprint for preaching, however, he walks alongside pastors, seminarians, and other congregational leaders who want to make sure the gospel, not an agenda, is preached.	1	Book	Leadership	Mary Bennett, CUC West, mary@cuc.ca, 604-261-7204		$18 Amazon		Signed Out	Mary Bennett	CUC West Office		mary@cuc.ca	NO
This Day in Unitarian Universalist History: A Treasury of Anniversaries and Milestones from 600 Years of Religious Tradition	Schulman, Frank	This treasury of anniversaries and milestones marks the significant events in Unitarian and Universalist faith heritage for every day of the year. This Day in Unitarian Universalist History spans six centuries of liberal religious tradition—from Transylvania, where Prince John Sigismund proclaimed himself a Unitarian in 1568 and published the Edict of Torda, to the consolidation of Unitarians and Universalists in 1981, to the UUA's modern movement of welcoming all people regardless of race, gender, sexual/affectional orientation or ability. Well organized and easy to use, this book's unique day-by-day format is ideal for ministers, lay leaders, religious educators and anyone who wishes to make UU religious history a part of his or her daily life. The extensive index includes major themes in Unitarian and Universalist history and information about congregations. Frank Schulman was chaplain, dean, and fellow in theology at Harts Manchester College at Oxford University. His other books include Blasphemous and Wicked: The Unitarian Struggle for Equality, 1813-1844; A Fine Victorian Gentleman: The Life and Times of Charles Wellbeloved and James Martineau: This Conscience-Intoxicated Unitarian.	1	Book	Worship	Toronto Library		$20 UUA Bookstore		Available

Circle Round	Starhawk/Baker, Diane/Hil, Anne	"Circle Round" is a wonderful resource for parents of any religion who want to teach their children a reverence for nature. The authors show that the practice of Earth-centered spirituality is not a once-a-week break from the rest of our lives, it is embodied--woven into our eating, sleeping, working, playing, and even breathing. The book's three main sections cover the eight seasonal holidays of the Pagan calendar, the human life-cycle, and the elements. Each section contains activities and rituals, investigations and recipes, and covers the basics while weaving in many unexpected gems. Suggestions range from the widely-practiced carving pumpkins on Samhain - the Pagan New Year, a.k.a. Halloween) to ones that would seem 'out there' to all but the most open-minded of families (a community-wide 'first blood' ritual celebrating a girl's first period; contemporary fables for Brigit (the holiday marking the beginning of Spring), and many beautiful ideas for celebrating pregnancy and birth.	1	Book	RE	Toronto Library		$18 Amazon		Available

Velveteen Rabbit, The	Williams, Margery	A stuffed toy rabbit (with real thread whiskers) comes to life in Margery Williams's timeless tale of the transformative power of love. Given as a Christmas gift to a young boy, the Velveteen Rabbit lives in the nursery with all of the other toys, waiting for the day when the Boy (as he is called) will choose him as a playmate. In time, the shy Rabbit befriends the talkative Skin Horse, the wisest resident of the nursery, who reveals the goal of all nursery toys: to be made "real" through the love of a human. "Real isn't how you are made," said the Skin Horse. "It's a thing that happens to you. When a child loves you for a long, long time, not just to play with, but REALLY loves you, then you become Real." This sentimental classic—perfect for any child who's ever thought that maybe, just maybe, his or her toys have feelings—has been charming children since its first publication in 1922.	1	Book	RE	Toronto Library		$3.99 Amazon		Available
